Foreword

We, the Senior Class of 1919, take great pleasure in introducing to you the First Year Book published in the Tecumseh Public Schools. It has taken a great deal of time and effort to compile this book and we hope you will not be too critical in judging it. Remember, we are pioneers in blazing the trail for the T. H. S. Annual. If we have made any mistakes in creating this book, it is for the good of future classes that they may profit by them. A large part of its success is due to Miss Donaldson who has helped and advised us throughout the entire making, and to Miss Caldwell for art suggestions, also to the business men who generously contributed advertising matter.

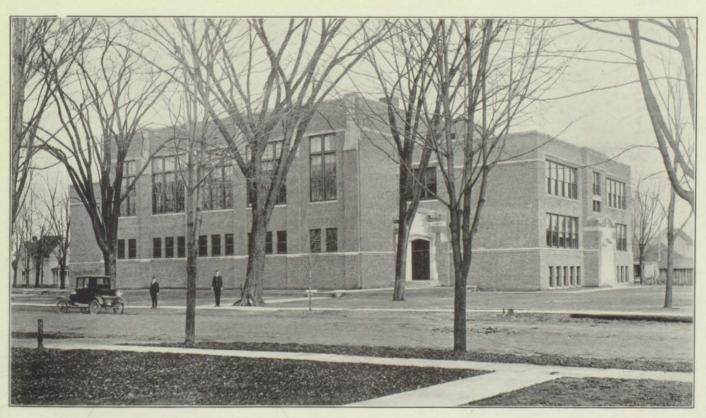

We realize that there could be improvements, but we have done the best we could in the time we have allowed ourselves, and our parting wish is that the Senior Echoes of 1920 will be even better than that of 1919.

Salutatory

P. M. HAYDEN

We, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen, salute you!

We have met with a common purpose tonight; to thank you, our fathers, mothers and friends who have made it possible for us to acquire high-school educations. We know that you have made sacrifices for us and here you can see, in a meager way, the results of your sacrifices. Tonight we will have the satisfaction of receiving diplomas, signifying that we, after twelve long years of school, have successfully passed every grade. Tonight you will have the satisfaction of seeing the results of the sacrifices on your part and of the years of preparation on our part in the simple program that follows.

As a great master of art delights to look upon the successful efforts of his students, just so we believe that you will take pleasure in listening to the few words that we have to say to you at this time. All we ask is that you be lenient in your criticism of our attempts at creating literature, and remember that as yet we have not a corner on all the learning in the world, nor do we profess to be orators in any sense of the word.

We want you to think of us only as a jolly group of students who have been sufficiently serious at times to study enough to graduate.

Just as the finest flour is the finished product of good wheat, this, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen is the product of the Tecumseh High School. But unlike a kernel of wheat which, in a single season, becomes flour, we are here tonight only after having passed through twelve seasons and only after having reached the top rung in the ladder of our primary education.

As a farmer sows his wheat in the fall of the year, just so our parents planted us twenty-two Seniors in the Garden of Education in the September of 1907. And as a kernel of wheat finds the dark, warm soil a comfortable place in which to live, just so we found the primary class one continual round of pleasure, where nearly all one had to do was to draw pictures, play games and sing.

But a kernel of wheat cannot be in the warm ground without commencing to germinate and to grow, and neither could we stay in the kindergarten class without feeling a desire to do what the big first-graders were doing. We wanted to grow, to become bigger, to be heard and seen, and to have some part in the world's activities.

As, of course, a kernel of wheat does not know that eventually it becomes flour, neither twelve years ago did we realize that in such a short time we would be leaving our desks and text-books to take up our work in a bigger world.

Warm autumn showers make the wheat grow rapidly and very soon it reaches light. From now on it sees life in an entirely different light, and a great revelation to the little seed is that there are many other young, green shoots on all sides, the same as itself. Some are not up so high, some are just peeping through the crust of the soil and some have grown away up above it. Not particularly fond of having any of the shoots ahead of it, and not knowing why, let us imagine that the little sprout finds this to be the reason: Every little seed has an equal chance to grow and the same opportunities to be of some benefit to the world.

Just so did we in our early school days. Now some "little seeds" had the notion that work wasn't necessary to gain a livelihood and they acted accordingly. Of course, all went well for a while, but just as there is a limit to everything, these lazy "seeds" soon began to lose out in the race. The secret of success gradually unfolded itself, that to get up in the world they must not lie down on the job and rely on outside conditions to help, but to soak in all the rain and sunshine they possibly could, and to grow by their own labors. We began to realize that when we left the ground floor in the old West Branch School to take up our new seats in the fifth-grade room. We had all come up in the world, for the fifth-grade room was at least fifteen feet higher than the fourth.

After all traces of the cold winter have disappeared and spring at last arrives, we note a wonderful change in the little green shoot. It has passed in a hurry though the babyhood class in agriculture and has now become a first-class stalk. It seems to survive the freezing and thawing period of early spring just as tenaciously as we did our despised mid-semester "exams" and to withstand wind and storm as doggedly as we swallowed the "X's" and "F-'s" on our report cards.

Every day it gains in strength. Every day it manages to squeeze up just a notch higher in the world. The days fly fast, the month of May comes and goes, then June. The harvest is at hand and the wheat is taken from the fields to the granaries. Likewise we were taken from the field of the grammar grades into high school.

It sounds easy, doesn't it? But we must remember that a stalk of wheat has to fight the elements for a living. Likewise we had our troubles to overcome. My twenty-one comrades here, veterans of the campaign of 1907-1919, can testify with me that we had some mighty indigestible material in those textbooks to assimilate.

We have followed the growth of the wheat through to the milling stage and the progress of our class through to the entering of high school. Instead of tracing the growth of one little seed, let us now consider ourselves graduating from the eighth grade as the harvest from eight acres of wheat.

We entered high school in the fall of 1915, and like the chaff that is separated from the wheat by threshing, a goodly number of our classmates fell behind and passed from our view.

And as the farmer's screenings are separated from the wheat by the miller's receiving separator, more of our Sophomores drifted away from us in 1916.

Then we entered the Junior year where, as the wheat is crushed on the first rolls and the flour, the very heart of the wheat, comes to view, we begin to discover our own abilities, to see our own failings and to learn to know ourselves.

Flour is mixed, refined and dressed by modern milling machinery and turned a pure white by bleaching. Likewise we began to mix in social affairs and were, might we say, polished up a bit by our high school receptions, parties and dances.

As a miller can change the kernels of wheat into pure white flour by milling, even so our teachers have, by putting us through the hard mill of grinding school work, transformed us from the mischievous youngsters of 1907 to these grave Seniors of 1919.

Flour is the finished product of the wheat and we, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen, present ourselves tonight as the yearly finished product of the good old Tecumseh High.

Each and every one of us bids you welcome.

The Class History

ALICE HARDENBURGH

It was on a bright September morning, in the year of nineteen hundred and fifteen, that the history of our famous class began. For at this time we, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen, entered Tecumseh High School. Many who started with us have left, but some have been added until now we number twenty-two.

One of the first events in our Freshman year was the meeting of our members, and the choosing of our President, Robert Moore, Jr.; and of our class colors, gold and white.

Late in October we had our first class party, a Hallowe'en frolic to which all came masked, and a jolly bunch we were.

In fact, as Freshmen, we made ourselves both known and heard. Three of our girls were on the high-school basket-ball team. And our Freshman team defeated the Seniors. As for making ourselves heard, we all did, but especially Perry Hayden, who was elected school yell-master.

As Sophomores, we again entered the old school building. At first we resided where ordinary Sophomores did, on the second floor, but Mr. Reed, thinking us a very exceptional class, moved us downstairs with the Seniors, and incidently near his office. But we did not remain long in the old building. On January 31, 1917, we entered school at the Hotel Vendoma. Here school took on a different aspect and had even a homelike atmosphere. The dining room was the assembly hall, where we feasted on knowledge. The kitchen became the science laboratory, while the laundry became the Latin quarters, the remainder of the house being the apartments of English, history, mathematics, music and drawing. After a short vacation due to undesirable tenants (bugs), we again took up our work at the Hotel.

In September of 1917, we could call ourselves Juniors, and back we trooped to the Vendoma, to continue our course of education. This year we decided to promote class spirit by having a class party every month. Parties were enjoyed at the homes of Miss Palmer, our English teacher, Jane McConnell, Elizabeth Comfort, Vera Sisson, Lena Mapes, Helen Morgan. Never shall we forget our sleigh-ride to Helen's when the mercury registered twelve degrees below zero, but the fine dinner with which we were served fully atoned for our long, cold ride.

As is customary in Tecumseh High School, we put on the annual Junior Play. The success of our play, "The Heiress Hunters," was largely due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Goodrich and Miss Mary Miller. And we felt well satisfied when we learned that we had cleared over one hundred and sixty dollars.

Friday evening, May tenth, we gave an elaborate reception to the Seniors at the home of Robert Moore, Jr. On account of the war, we decided to have our program in keeping with the spirit of the day and chose as our subject, "War Gardens."

We, in return, were entertained by the Seniors at the home of Miss Dorothy Balmer.

When we were nearing the close of our Junior year, the Redpath Lyceum Bureau sent their representative here to interest the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen in financing a Lyceum Course to be held in the new Tecumseh High School auditorium. This we accomplished with the help of Junior and Senior divisions of high school, and we hope that the Senior class of next year will have as great a success as we have had.

ոյսիկիկի արանական ար

Late in September of 1918, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen again met, but this time on a different field of action, for we assembled in the new Tecumseh school. Here we trod the flowery path of knowledge in peace.

One thing that made our school prominent, aside from the new school building, was the addition of a course in military training. The instructor was Hugh Hanna, Jr. Our Senior boys were well represented among the officers: Captain, Robert Moore, Jr.; First Lieutenant, Perry Hayden; Sergeant, Milburn Brooks.

In October, we had an enforced vacation due to the influenza epidemic. And when we assembled again, we regretted that one member of our class was not with us. Kenneth Davidson died on December 19th of pneumonia.

Soon after Christmas vacation, we originated the idea of being the first class of Tecumseh to issue a year book. After much effort, we produced the "Senior Echoes," and we do not doubt but that classes which follow will continue the custom that we have established.

In conclusion, we, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen, congratulate ourselves on being the first class to graduate from the new school building, and we hope those that follow will enjoy it as much as we have.

HELEN MORGAN

In the year 1930, when the Steamer Tecumseh struck a rock somewhere off the Southwestern coast of Africa and the wail of shipwreck rose as one voice from the terror-stricken crowd, I happened to be one of its passengers. In a spasm of fear and frenzy, I hurriedly snatched a life-preserver and not waiting for my doubts to be abolished or confirmed, threw myself into the depths below. Sometime later, I can never tell how long, I found myself conscious of lying, faint and hungry, in a bed of white sand and the seemingly tropical sun pouring down upon me. I was quite dazed at first, but as I came to my senses, in sheer desperation I arose and staggered to some nearby berry bushes, seized the fruit that hung there and devoured it hungrily. In a very few minutes I felt myself going into a sort of trance, familiar faces in strange pictures flashed before my eyes, first confused and indistinct, but finally crystalizing into things clear and possible.

The first one that I recall was what seemed to be the interior of the United States Supreme Court. The judge, with a solemn face, was presiding over the assembly, and upon looking closer, I was surprised to find my old classmate, Robert Moore, and whom should I discover to be his stenographer, but competent, nimble-fingered Jane McConnell.

That scene quickly passed and the next was that of a hospital, where the nurses were taking their patients out for a walk. I recognized no one at first, but as it came closer, I could see the portly figure of Gladys Gilbert, faithfully fulfilling her duties as head nurse in the young men's ward of a base hospital.

Things were traveling so fast before my eyes that I could scarcely comprehend what it was all about. Mabel Lockwood and Violet Boyd stood before me. They were dressed in the beautiful attire of actresses, and were dancing to the lively swing of the orchestra, and as the music ceased, they danced off the stage amid a roar of applause from the audience.

Before I could recall the place, another scene came into view, which seemed to be somewhere in the jungles of Africa. There was a small company of natives gathered around, listening intently to a blond young women who was expounding the scriptures very earnestly. As she turned her head, one glance at her profile assured me that she was none other than Lucile Miller.

But the scene again changed from one of quiet to one of shouts and laughter, wild animals, tumbling clowns, and prancing horses. Suddenly my attention was riveted to a very daring bareback rider, whose figure and manner seemed very familiar as she came dashing toward me. My suppositions were right. It was Marion Crittenden, radiantly happy in her successful career.

A curtain seemed to drop before the gay scene. The sad, sweet face of a nun rose up before me, and in her eyes I read the story of a broken heart and disappointed love, doubtless the very thing that had driven Vera Sisson to this cloistered life.

But life had not been so cruel to all, for our next scene is one near Clinton, the happy married life of Jessie French.

"With a husband so fine, And a family of nine." Wonderful buildings in large cities flashed before my eyes and on each one was the sign "1900 Flour, Best in the Land." Perry Hayden had fulfilled his ambitions, and had made his flour known even to the uttermost parts of Italy and Japan.

I next found myself looking down from a balcony of a large Y. W. C. A. Gym. upon Marion and Mildred Brooks who were conducting a large class of girls in their daily physical training exercises. The girls all showed their appreciation at having such capable teachers instructing them.

I was very much surprised at the next thing that met my gaze, for whom should I see but Harley Van Vleet, who was running, on a large scale, the "Comfort Brick Yards" just outside of Tecumseh. After a hard day's work, he would go to his happy home to be surrounded by many "Comforts."

At first glance, the next scene seemed very familiar, for it proved to be none other than that of our Tecumseh High School. It passed on into the interior, and there seated at her desk, was Eula Schwartz. Eula had always been good in her studies and after attending the Normal, she had studied the languages in Europe for some time, and now had returned to do her part in training the minds of the younger generations.

Gradually the figure at the desk vanished and an entirely new scene flashed before me, that of a noted fashion shop on Fifth Avenue. Crowds were seen before a window where living models were displaying gorgeous gowns for the élite. One figure was especially alluring, that of a tall, slender blonde. Something in her poise and manner, in spite of the splendor, reminded me of my old school days and Alice Hardenburgh. Her passion for beautiful clothes had carried her into this sphere of the artistic world.

A society column in the Tecumseh Astonisher next appeared. "Lena Mapes and Edgar Meads, quietly married at the bride's home in Onsted, with Rev. Milburn W. Brooks officiating. The bride was beautifully attired in red satin and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds. The groom having secured someone equally able to take his place in his prosperous junk-dealing business, the happy couple will take an extended honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls."

The setting of the next picture was in the down-town district of Boston, where our modest Muriel Halladay had attained the reputation of being one of the first-class milliners of the day and was owner of the biggest millinery establishments in the city.

Against the background of a golden sunset, the figure of a woman on horse-back could be seen crossing a western plain. As she approached nearer and nearer, the vision, instead of fading as the previous one had, became clearer and more real. Finally I found myself conscious, and Susie Anderson stood not more than twenty feet from the place where I was. Could this, too, be a dream? Susie herself proved it to be a reality by springing lightly from her horse and coming forward to assist me to my feet. After I had eaten the entire lunch that she happened to be carrying to her husband, who was foreman of a mine near there, I felt quite like myself again and equal to the situation. The situation, however, did not prove to be as bad as I had expected. Susie convinced me that I was not on a wild, uninhabited island as I had supposed, but on the continent itself. In a few days, after communicating by wire with friends, I found myself sailing homeward, thinking of the days I had spent in High School with my classmates.

Class Poem

With ruler, paper and pen,
With gray matter working its best,
A student sat by his table one night
Cramming his head for a test.
Study! Study!
'Till the clock in the tower strikes one;
But still he burns the midnight oil
And wishes the task were done.

Study! Study!

'Till streaks of dawn tinge the sky;
And work—work

'Till the milkman rattles by!
It's O, to be through school;
And out in the world to roam,
Where there are no studies to bother your brain
And make you hate your home!

"But why do we talk of work,—
That path which we all must tread?
Why not stop grumbling and finish the task
And count our blessings instead?"
So the student sat and worked on,
And finally his task was done;
But he thought of the work he had yet to do
And he knew he had only begun.

With ruler, paper and pen,
With gray matter working its best,
A student sat by his table one night
Cramming his head for a test.
Study! Study!
Yes, our work is only begun;
But if we look at it cheerfully
Our task isn't hard; it's fun.

There is something for each and all,
Some work which we must do;
But we must not shirk and quit this work
Until we know we are through.
Sometimes our tasks may be hard for us,
And often our progress slow,
But let each wear a smile on his face
As "Upward and Onward" we go.

MURIEL E. HALLADAY.

Class Will

HARLEY VAN VLEET

After most tedious and almost ineffective searching and researching on the part of the Senior class for a good, honest man upon whom they might safely place the heavy responsibility of disposing in an appropriate and satisfactory way, their vast possessions and accumulated wealth, they finally have decided to trust this Herculean task to me, Attorney Van Vleet.

They have requested said document to be read in the Opera House June 19, 1919.

We, the class of nineteen hundred and nineteen of Tecumseh High School, the first and most important class that will ever be graduated from the new building, County of Lenawee, and State of Michigan, being of strong hearts, of sound mind and disposing memory, do hereby make, publish, and declare this as our last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills by us made or papers testamentary, of whatsoever nature:

First—We hereby will and direct that all our just and unjust debts be paid in full by the class of nineteen hundred and twenty after our departure.

Second—We bequeath the lately-constructed school building with its magnificent halls and stately class rooms, to the future classes. May they always observe the dignity of their predecessors in taking good care of its furniture and atmosphere.

Third—To the High School we leave the opportunity to go "Over the Top."

Fourth—We bestow upon our successors, commonly called Juniors, the trials and tribulations of the senior year. Although they can more than fill our places in regard to quantity, we feel that they cannot be compared with us in quality, adaptability and efficiency in taking up the tasks before them. We only ask that they do their best according to their ability. Also, we leave them the responsibility of continuing the publication of the "Senior Echoes." To these Juniors, also, we give Mr. Alderdyce and his truck. May they take many long rides.

Fifth—To the Sophomores we bequeath the front seats in the assembly hall; also a book of answers, in order that the Palman brothers need not go beyond their own classmates seeking results to their numerous questions and problems.

Sixth—To the Seventh and Eighth grades we bequeath a desk on the stage, that position being open to the first volunteer, or to any one who may be drafted.

To the faculty we make the following bequests:

First—To the authorities of the year 1919-1920 we bequeath the advice that a guardian be placed over the Freshmen to keep them out of all dangerous and questionable places and remind them when it is time for "taps" so they will not needlessly burn the midnight darkness. Also, to them the advice may be given that Leslie Abbott be forbidden to consume sweet chocolate every day for lunch.

Second—We bequeath to our steady and loyal superintendent, Mr. Reed, many memories of the days spent in Tecumseh High School.

Third—To Mr. Duguid we present our first "Senior Echoes," providing he has paid for it.

Fourth—We bequeath to Miss Miller a revised edition of new commands so that she may secure a new one, as her old one "Get to Work," is about worn out.

Fifth—To Mr. Laidlaw we bequeath a muffler for his vocal chords.

Sixth—To the faculty at large we give one last, long, lingering look.

The members of the Senior class make the following individual bequests:

First—Perry Hayden leaves his first volume of history jokes to Miss Donaldson, so that when she has the "blues" she may read them and smile.

Second—Gladys Gilbert bequeaths her long-loved and over-fed goose to Gladwin Orr.

Third—Robert Moore, Jr., bequeaths his phonograph and Perry Hayden his roll of music, to John Baker.

Fourth—Jane McConnell wills her knowledge of riding horseback to Dorothy Martin.

Fifth—Upon Helen McIntyre, Milburn Brooks gladly bestows his bashfulness.

Sixth—Alice Hardenburgh bequeaths her power of concentration and position in the foremost ranks, to Ralph Hodges.

Seventh—Edgar Meads bequeaths with great reluctance his book entitled "Helpful Hints to Bluffers," to George Allen Newsome, who has practiced that art considerably of late.

Eighth—Mabel Lockwood bequeaths to Margaret Van Winkle her art and methods of wiling away time.

We hereby nominate and appoint Miss Yutzey as executrix of this our last will and testament, and authorize and empower our said executrix to bargain, sell and convey, or mortgage our real estate, without first obtaining an order of the court therefor.

In witness whereof we set our hands and seals this 19th day of June A. D. 1919.

SENIOR CLASS OF 1919.

Signed, sealed, published and declared by the said class of Tecumseh High School as and for their last will and testament, in the presence of us, who, at their request, in their presence, and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as attesting witnesses. And the said class were at the time of unlawful age, of sound mind and disposing memory and free from compulsion and restrain.

ROBERT MOORE, JR.

This is the night upon which we are to set aside our school work and enter the realm of life, necessarily breaking off old friendships and making new ones. Our success in forming new associations will depend largely upon the success that we have had in making friends while in school. Our school associations have been very pleasant and cheerful, and our hope is that we may make as good progress along the path of life as we have in old Tecumseh High School. We regret to sever the friendly relationships with our kind-hearted teachers who more than once have helped us out of serious difficulties, and placed us again and again upon the right path. We thank the different ones who have helped in making our school life a success, and we only hope that we may render ourselves helpful in the days to come.

It was in our Freshman year that we caught the spirit of the school, and little by little, step by step, through our Sophomore and Junior years, it has grown, like a small spark that starts a large forest fire, until now it has reached its height and we are unable to suppress it. It is this spirit of loyalty and comradeship that makes it hard for us to depart. Our social events have been very successful during all the years, and this has also increased our close relationship with each other.

Our yesterdays have passed; the sun has set upon our school days, and when it rises upon the morrow we hope to begin our life pursuits, whatever they may be. Our fields will be widely separated; some will enter college, others will take up farming or a business pursuit and go wherever their special interests may call them.

In the days to come, there will be difficulties to be encountered, and as the memories of our school days are flashed back to us, they will steady us and give us confidence in ourselves, for we know we have weathered the storms of our school days, which prepare us to withstand the greater storms of life that are sure to come. We have accomplished many things that have seemed impossible, and if we have been able to do them well, we hope it may help us to do other things better. In the past, happiness has sometimes been enjoyed when our lessons have been overlooked, but this is one of the many points we hope to rectify in the future.

Dear Classmates: It is now time for us to depart. Although we hate to say good-bye, and in some cases it may be forever, we will enter life with a firm purpose to conquer everything before us, to push "upward and onward." It is with these words that we leave old Tecumseh High School behind, with its unflinching honor, fighting spirit, and staunch friends. To the Juniors we give the honored name of Seniors; may you cherish and protect it as we have done during the previous year. With these few words, we bid friends, teachers, schoolmates, farewell.

Electrical Expert Honored

Reported by IMA. D. LYER

March 29, 1950-The annual convention of the Association of Electrical Engineers was held in the spacious grape-juice garden of the Hotel Vendoma this afternoon. The meeting was called to order by the Honorary President Thomas Edison. Mr. Juice from Wire, Indiana, made a motion which was passed by a majority vote, that an expedition be sent to bring the North Pole to Greenwich. "By so doing" Mr. Juice said, "a great deal of trouble can be saved lazy sea-captains in figuring distances," etc. Mr. Harley Van Vleet E. E. and D. F. was chosen by the nominating committee and elected ananimously president of the association for the ensuing year. Mr. Van Vleet, better known as "Harley" to his many friends, is recognized as Ameriea's greatest authority on alternating currents. He is a graduate of T. H. S. in 1919, the University of Michigan and the Boston Tech. Mr. Van Vleet informed the Astonisher's cub reporter today that he was making an extended visit to his parents on East Chicago Street.

Garbage Corporation Formed

Edgar Meads
Wealthy Farmer
Heads Company

Reported by URA FISH

The organization of a garbage syndicate in Tecumseh has at last been perfected. This corporation will have a monopoly on house-to-house Collection of garbage in town. Mr. Edgar Meads, a wealthy farmer living north of here, has purchased 65 per cent of the stock. It is expected that local parties will subscribe the balance this week. Mr. Meads has contracted to buy of the corporation all the garbage, which he will feed to his immense herd of swine. The Astonisher is glad to see a movement of this kind promoted and wishes the new company success in its enterprise.

Another Tecumseh Boy Promoted

Baltimore April 1st—Robert Moore, Jr., born and raised in Tecumseh, has been promoted from head accountancy of the Smellproof Sock Corporation to the Presidency. Mr. Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Moore of this city. His rise in the business world has been spectacular. Robt. Moore, Jr. is very generous with his money. He recently donated $500.00 to the Newberg Institute for the Bankrupt Cootie Fanciers.

Special to the Astonisher

March 30, Paris—The biggest society event in Monte Carlo this season was the marriage of Miss Lena Mapes, formerly of Onsted, Michigan, and Count Sardine of the Canary Islands. The ceremony proper was held in the magnificient ballroom of the Hindenburg castle. Pope Leo XXIII of Rome tied the nuptial (k) not. The older inhabitants of Tecumseh will remember Miss Mapes as a school girl, graduating in that famous class of 1919. The bride and groom are to make their summer home in Iceland at the Count's castle and their winter home in London. We all wish Lena the best of luck.

Apr. 1—Work has begun on the immense plant of the Wm. Hayden Milling Company. The total capacity of the chain of Hayden mills extending from Buffalo to Minneapolis will soon be 60,000 barrels daily—about half of this output is shipped to South America where a branch of the company has been established. Another Halladay Novel

Book readers are welcoming with joyful glee the new novel, "Why is a Cow," written by Muriel Halladay. The sale of the tenth edition has reached the million mark and it is believed by the publishers that "Why is a Cow" will go down in History as a work second only to George Turbines' "Lightning Flashes."

Convention Here

Mar. 30—Miss Lucille Miller, President of the National Federation of Housewives, announced today that the yearly convention of that Federation would be held here at the Hotel Tecumseh (European Plan) in October. Miss Miller has attained no little distinction in the perfecting of a recipe for making nut cookies: It is as follows:

NUT COOKIES

Strain a cup and a half of grated licorice or ordinary soup-stock through an umbrella case. Tie four eggs to the legs of the kitchen table and beat them unmercifully. Remove the gums from eight gum drops and add a level teaspoonful of selected raccoon fur to taste. Stir rapidly without compunction and roll out the dough with perfect nonchalance. Go down to the four corners and find some nuts. On the following Tuesday place the nuts on the floor in a row. Lead the cookies in single file in front of the nuts and when you have a cookie standing in front of every nut and their minds are far away, suddenly push them backward with a fishing pole and they will all sit down on a nut. Then there is no alternative; they have to be nut cookies. -with apologies to

"A Couple of Millions"

Synopsis

Bemis Bennington, a New York youth, learns from his lawyer that he is heir to the two million dollars of his uncle, Silas B. Chizzleton, on condition that he fulfill the conditions of the three codicils attached to the will, namely:

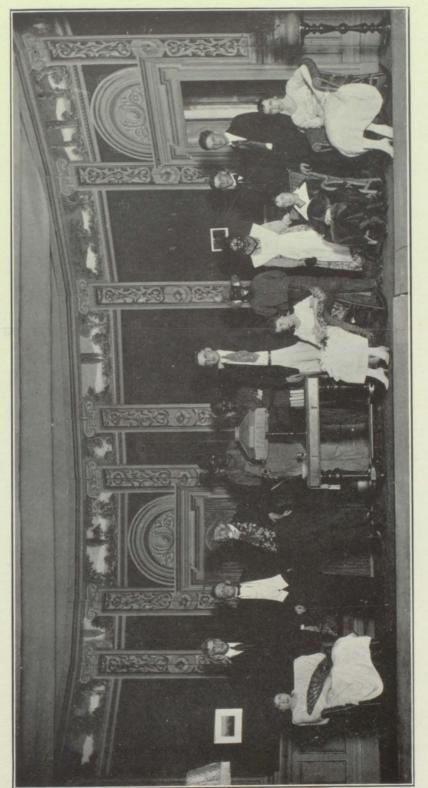

- 1—That he live in a town of less than 5,000 inhabitants for one year.
- 2—That he marry within six months.
- 3—That he earn $5,000 during his residence in the town.

If he does not fulfill the conditions of the will, the money will revert to Professor Noah Jabb, a shrewd, scheming Southern gentleman, who turns out to be a real crook. In spite of many seemingly unconquerable obstacles, Bemis wins the Chizzleton millions, but not without first proving his willingness to give up the money if necessary, in order to win the hand of Fay Fairbanks, the Belle of Alabama.

JUNIOR HIGH

Our Junior High

Behold our little Junior High students tearing through the corridors. If we Seniors could buy them for what they are worth and sell them for what they think they are worth, we feel that we would graduate with more money in our pockets than any previous class. But we feel that time and experience will cure them of this wild habit of rushing down the hall when the bell rings, as if it were the fire gong. And too, just think what a "UTOPIA" our assembly room will be when these youngsters have forgotten the gentle but disturbing art of WHISPERING. But as this is their first year under the six-six plan in the new building, we feel that we must not be too hard on them, for they will surely improve in time.

The Junior High, however, has some very promising athletes who have already proyen their ability in such things by the excellent spirit with which they have entered into games with neighboring Junior Highs.

Chewing gum seems to be a favorite pastime with these youngsters, but, never mind, Juniors, we too were there once, and some of us are still helping to wear down a path to the waste basket.

The Student Council is an innovation in our school government this year. The officers were elected from the school at large and the representatives were chosen by their respective classes. You will notice by the picture that equal suffrage is in vogue in Tecumseh. Although the influence of the Student Council has not affected us much, yet we believe that it will be a vital factor in the High School life of years to come.

Our team was well coached by Coach Duguid, ably assisted by Karl Schneider. Our best game was with Clinton on Thanksgiving Day when we lost by the close score of 9-7. At end of third quarter we led by the score of 7-3. We had them scared it is sure, as their coach was the authority for such a statement. All of the games were hard fought except the one at Hudson, where we were robbed. The flu hindered us a great deal. Prospects for next year are fine. With the material we should sweep the country. The death of K. Davidson who played so well at left tackle was a great loss. This year's stars were: R. Moore, Jr., who registered 7 of touch-downs; R. Van Winkle fighting half; B. Ousterhout the sturdy tackle. R. Abbott deserves much praise for showing his school spirit in the Addison game when he broke his collar-bone. Hope to see you in it next year, Rusty.

Note:

We hope to do better next year, as this is our first attempt at basket-ball. The playing showed results of previous training though and when our present material has had a year or two of practice we ought to be able to cope with most any team in this neck of the woods.

We are not apologizing a bit for not having made a better showing in this year's games. Lack of a "gym" heretofore has hindered us a great deal. All we say is, "Watch our Dust Next Year."

Words alone cannot express the debt of gratitude which the High School boys owe H. H. Hanna for putting so much time and interest into the organizing and training of the Cadet Corps. That the military training has done a world of good we can all see. The rigid discipline exercised has benefited the boys both physically and morally.

1918 Junior Reception

One of the most delightful events in High School society last year was the Junior Reception, held at the home of R. Moore, Jr. It was given by the class of 1919 to the class of 1918, Friday, May 10th.

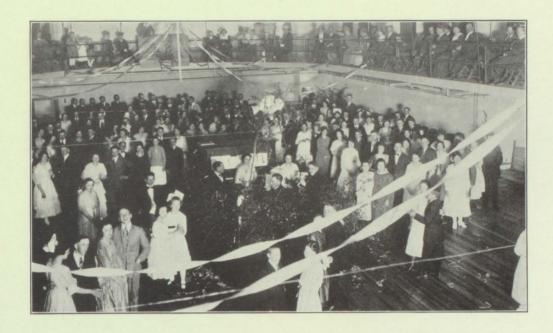

Program

Very appropriately, because of the season, the subject chosen for the program was "War Gardens."

Alice Hardenburgh, as president of the Juniors, gave the words of welcome and was responded to by "Zeke" McLain, the president of the Senior Class. Luster Best of Jackson, the president of the Junior Class until he moved to Jackson, acted as toastmaster. Others on the program were Jane McConnell, the Brooks' twins, Katherine Reed, Edna Taylor, Harold Blesing, Neal Rentschler, Jessie French, Dorothy Balmer, Joseph Satterthwaite, and Mr. O. J. Duguid. The reception was enjoyed by all. The above picture was taken during the evening.

1919 Junior Reception

Wednesday evening, May the twenty-first, the high school gymnasium was the scene of the annual Junior reception given to the faculty and Seniors. The decorations were most attractive, being very simple but entirely appropriate to the occasion. In the center of the room stood a pergola made of white columns and lattice, and decorated with palms and lilac branches. Around the room were grouped wicker chairs and tables of ferns and palms, while vari-colored butterflies were suspended from the ceiling. The entire north end of the gymnasium was given up to the eighteen small tables with their snowy luncheon cloths, sparkling silver and glassware, and candles with their rosy shades. The three-course dinner, which was served at seven o'clock, was fit for a king, so delicious was it. After the banquet, a most excellent program was given, with Ralph Hodges as toast-master. At nine o'clock the tables were removed, and with an orchestra seated in the pergola, members of the faculty, Juniors and Seniors all "tripped the light fantastic" for the remainder of the evening. And when at last it was all over, every one voiced the opinion that they had had "such a good time" and that the Juniors surely did know how to entertain.

May Party

The T. H. S. Gymnasium was resplendent Friday evening, May 2d, for the first party ever held in the building. Even the baskets used in basket-ball held their enormous bouquets, while wicker chairs and jardineers filled with blossoms made the corners and sides of the hall look homey. The orchestra was seated on a raised platform in the center of the room surrounded by a bower of greenery and blossoms. From the corners great boughs met at the top and were tied with a huge bow of pink, making the whole look like a great May basket. The pink and green strands from the May poles, wound gracefully about the gallery rail and balustrades. There were probably 300 dancing and almost as many spectators in the gallery.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Adah Hoyt of Clinton; Miss Marguerite Nixon of Holloway, Harold, Joseph and Raymond Platt of Tipton, and Miss Margaret Bertram, Leslie Walker, and Miller Wing of Adrian.

Coller's orchestra never played better, Mr. and Mrs. Coller being assisted by Mr. Clare Camburn of Macon, and Mrs. Opal Williams and Mr. Hughes of Adrian. A table bearing punch bowl and trays of wafers was frequently visited by the dancers; and when the last dance was over each and every one voiced the opinion that the first dance in the new "gym" was indeed a great success.

And all that is best,
May the pride of your class never fall.

Miss Donaldson—(Civil Government Class)—"In Nevada it is very easy to procure a divorce."

Mr. Hayden—"Is that why Horace Greeley said, 'Go West, young man?'"

Sunday School Teacher—"Do you know where little girls go who do not put their Sunday School money in the plate?"

Hildreth Gasner-"Yes'm, to the Greek's."

Why don't girls like history? Because they get mixed up on the dates.

Elizabeth Comfort—"If you were in a canoe and it tipped over, where would you rather be?"

Vera Sisson-"Ny-land, of course."

Lena Mapes—"What is the breath of suspicion?" Jessie French—"One that has cloves on it."

TAKEN FROM ALICE'S DIARY

"I have a little Bobbie who goes in and out with me, And what can be the use of him is more than I can see, But the funniest thing about him is the way he likes to grow; Not at all like proper children, which is always very slow.

"For he sometimes shoots up taller like an Indian rubber ball, But he never gets so little that there's none of him at all; He is very, very unlike me, from his head down to his boot, And I see him jump before me when I jump into the coupe.

"One morning, very early, before the sun was up,
I 'rose and found the shining dew on every buttercup,
But my frisky little Bobbie, like the brilliant fellow he is,
Was already up before me, at the Greek's a-drinking fizz."

Voice from the Hall—"Mrs. Laidlaw, there's a man out here who wants you." Marion Crittenden—"Gee, I wish some man would want me."

A	girl and I want one bad	Brooks
A	boy to deliver eggs about sixteen years old	Gilbert girl to love me for more than a week Edward
A	new giggle; my last year's one is worn outMabel Locality	ckwood

"Oh, say, Leila, who was here to see you last night?"

"Only Sena, father."

"Well, tell Sena she left her pipe on the piano."

Miss Cooley—"What is a Knight Templar?"

Mr. Meads—"He is the guy that takes care of the temple at night."

I, THE HERO

I sat in my home, by the fireplace so dear, Outside it was storming which heightened my fear, I was reading dime novels when two shrieks pierced the air, I knew by the sound they were two damsels so fair; So out through the window and into the storm, I ran down the street and tripped on my corn. But I jumped to my feet and continued my soar, Till I came to a spot all covered with gore. I turned to the right and kept on to the pond, Where to my delight I saw a young blond. I jumped on his back; hollered "Giddap," "To yonder shore, you crazy old yap!" On the shore dimly seen through the rims of my specks, I saw two fair maidens strung up by their necks. I shattered the rope by a swing of my arm Then picked up the maidens and took them from harm. And now in my chamber there hangs on the wall A Carnegie medal won by my gall.-

Written the seventh day of October in the Year Nineteen Hundred and Fifteen, A. D., by the Celebrated Freshmen Poet:

Rev. P. M. Hayden, M. D., LL.D., A. B.
Sole owner of the World.
Branch offices at Milwaukee, Manchester and Chicago.

Miss Donaldson—(In Civil Government Class)—"Mr. Van Vleet, tell us the common procedure used in passing bills in the legislature."

Mr. Van Vleet—"Well—er—a—you—see—"
The Bell—"Zing—g—g—g—!
Mr. Van Vleet—"Saved."

Cecile Clark—"They say Orpheus of old could make a stone wall move with his music."

Helen McIntyre—"That's nothing. Why, I made the two families next to us move."

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—Near the Opera House, an umbrella by a gentleman with bent ribs and a bone handle. Finder please return to———. Bob Moore.

Found—A pair of brains on the sidewalk in front of the North entrance. Will the Freshman who lost them please step forward with a reward?"

CAN YOU IMAGINE—

Mr. Reed in a pinch-back suit? Jessie French without a curl or a kink? Some Seniors ever attending a class party? Perry Hayden playing basket-ball? Lucile Miller teaching kindergarten? The Senior boys graduating in overalls? Harley Van Vleet making a noise in History Class? Gladys Gilbert in short dresses? Milburn Brooks getting excited? Bob Moore being short and sweet? Vera Sisson teaching Latin? Violet Boyd delivering an oration? Lena Mapes dancing the fox-trot? Edgar Meads winning a medal for good behavior? Miss Wimple roller skating? Edward Nyland not winking at the girls? Everybody having their history lesson?

WE WISH-

- 1—That if Margaret has more "Goodies" than she needs, she would pass them around.
- 2—That the Brooks twins would wear different colored middies so we could tell them apart.
- 3—Faculty—That if the student council gives any more stage sentences someone would donate a mirror so we can find out what is going on behind us.
- 4—That someone would volunteer to explain to Perry that Miss Miller does not always mean just exactly what she says when she asks for a solo.
- 5—That someone would give Alice a new watch set ten minutes ahead of time so she could get to history class on time.
- 6—Members of Senior Domestic Science Class—That Mrs. Laidlaw refrain from chastising any of the girls who desire to sing "Mopping up the Kitchen Floor" when they are Housekeepers No. 4.
- 7—That someone who is good at typing would offer their services to Bob Moore free of charge. Bob expects to write a sequel to "She Stoops to Conquer," namely, "Someone Pushed Her Over," and needs a typist."

Wendell Cleveland—(Trying to think of something to say)—"Have you read (red) Freckles?"

Alumni of T. H. S.

We have certainly enjoyed our few High School days and we hope to become as good members of the Alumni of the old Tecumseh High as those who have gone before us. Our parting wish is that the old T. H. S. spirit may never die, but grow stronger with the years, and that the high standard be maintained.

A PROGRESSIVE BANK

The success of the Tecumseh State Savings Bank since its organization in 1893, has placed it among the leading banks in the county, with a business now of over three-quarters of a million dollars.

The progress of this bank is due largely to the service rendered its customers by its officers and board of directors.

It is the policy of this bank to render the best possible service and to guard with safety the business entrusted to its care.

Its board of directors are men of experience who have been successful in their own business and are devoting their attention to the interests of this bank.

Its officers have had years of experience. Mr. J. H. Smith, the president, has been in the banking business thirty-two years. Mr. Guy E. Nemire, cashier, has had eleven years' banking business. These men are able to give advice gained by years of experience, to all who are starting in business; also on legal matters.

NEVISON'S STEAM BAKED BREAD

IS

Honest Bread

Abraham Lincoln wasn't called "Honest Abe" merely because he was honest in money matters. He was "Honest Abe" to the American people because they found him always standing for the things which he honestly believed the best. That's the way it is with our bread. Try a loaf of it today and you'll see why we speak of it as honest bread. It is honestly the best loaf of bread that we can produce at the price—a large, clean, delicious loaf of white bread.

A QUALITY PIE

Here's just the thing to finish off to-night's dinner—one of our quality pies. The crust isn't soggy and the fillings are delicious. We take as much pains in our marketing and making as the most careful housewife—possibly more than most people might consider necessary. But then we take pride in making our pies as well as we can, and if you try one of them you'll understand why we are proud of them. Try one—today.

THE CALF CLUB

As An Improver of Cattle in Southern Michigan

Boys and girls in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other States have made money and secured a working knowledge of one of the fundamental branches of better agriculture—the care and feeding of pure-bred cattle—through the organization of calf clubs.

Bankers and business men who were interested in promoting the prosperity of their community met with the boys and girls and some of their parents and appointed a committee with authority to purchase pure-bred heifers and supervise their distribution.

In one locality thirty yearling heifers were secured and the calf club members purchased them at $275 each. The heifers were numbered and each member was assigned the heifer whose number corresponded to the number drawn by lot.

The banks loaned the money at the prevailing rate of interest and the heifers were insured.

The drawing took place in May, and at the County Fair held the following September a show and sale was held. A first prize of $100, a second prize of $50 and a third prize of $25 were offered for the best three heifers.

The winner was a beautiful roan heifer fed by a twelve-year old girl. The heifer sold in the sale at $410 making a nice profit of $135, which with the first prize of $100 or $235 altogether, well paid the young lady for work which she found pleasant, instructive and profitable.

The thirty heifers averaged over $300 and no heifer sold for less than the original purchase price. A number of the boys and girls have invested the proceeds of their sales in more pure-bred heifers of the same breed and their parents, encouraged by their success, are helping to secure for them a foundation for a pure-bred herd.

It costs no more to feed a pure-bred animal than a "scrub," and besides making a greater profit, the pure-bred is a source of satisfaction to its owner and distinguishes him as a progressive farmer.

War conditions have brought high prices for all live-stock products and a corresponding increase in the cost of production. Business methods are being applied by farmers as never before in keeping down the cost of producing a pound of meat or a gallon of milk. In several States the use of pure-bred sires has been made compulsory and the corn-belt farmers of Michigan are now recognizing that the fertility of their lands are increased and greater profits result from the raising and feeding of pure-bred cattle.

BIDWELL

SHORTHORNS

FLASH HALLWOOD 496989

a roan grandson of Imported Villager—out of a Lavender—heads the herd

The upbuilding and conserving of the soil's fertility is a factor that renders imperative the growing of cattle.

SHORTHORNS IN FAVOR

The ranchman regards Shorthorn blood with favor because it assures increased scale and better bone, which means more profit at a given age.

The feeder likes the Shorthorn because it economically produces the most pounds of gain on a given amount of feed. The width of loin, smooth, deep flesh covering and well-rounded quarters are dominating Shorthorn characteristics.

The farmer finds profit in growing the Shorthorn, as the breed is particularly adapted to his combined requirements of beef and milk.
